The Floating Opera And End Of Road John Barth

The Floating Opera is a novel by American writer John Barth, first published in 1956 and significantly revised in 1967. Barth's first published work, the existentialist and nihilist story is a first-person account of a day when protagonist Todd Andrews contemplates suicide. Critics and Barth himself often pair The Floating Opera with Barth's next novel, The End of the Road; both were written in 1955, and they are available together in a one-volume edition. Both are philosophical novels; The End

The Floating Opera - Wikipedia

The Floating Opera is a philosophical novel in the existentialist genre ¶ meaning that its main concerns are the problems of how to justify and be ok with one's existence. In order to complete his thinking on this subject, Barth followed it up with The End of the Road , a companion novel on the same themes that is much more tragic and serious in tone.
